

CALIFORNIA'S AGING POPULATION: IMPLICATIONS FOR HOUSING

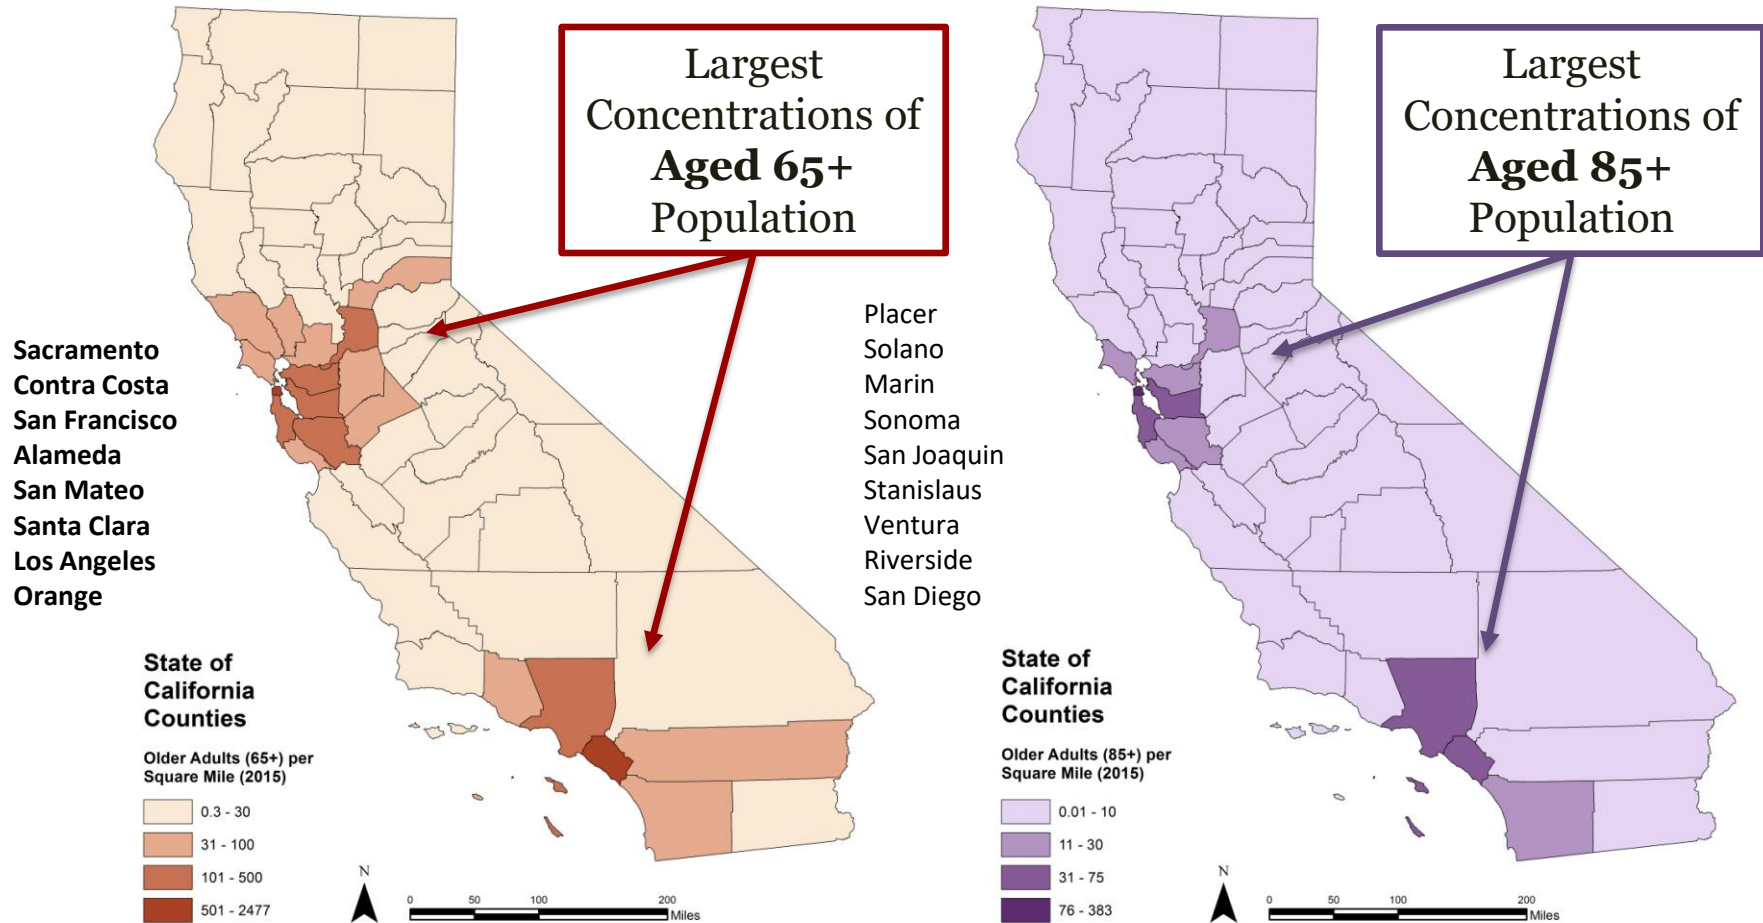

Jennifer A. Ailshire, PhD

Assistant Professor of Gerontology, Sociology, and Spatial Sciences

University of Southern California

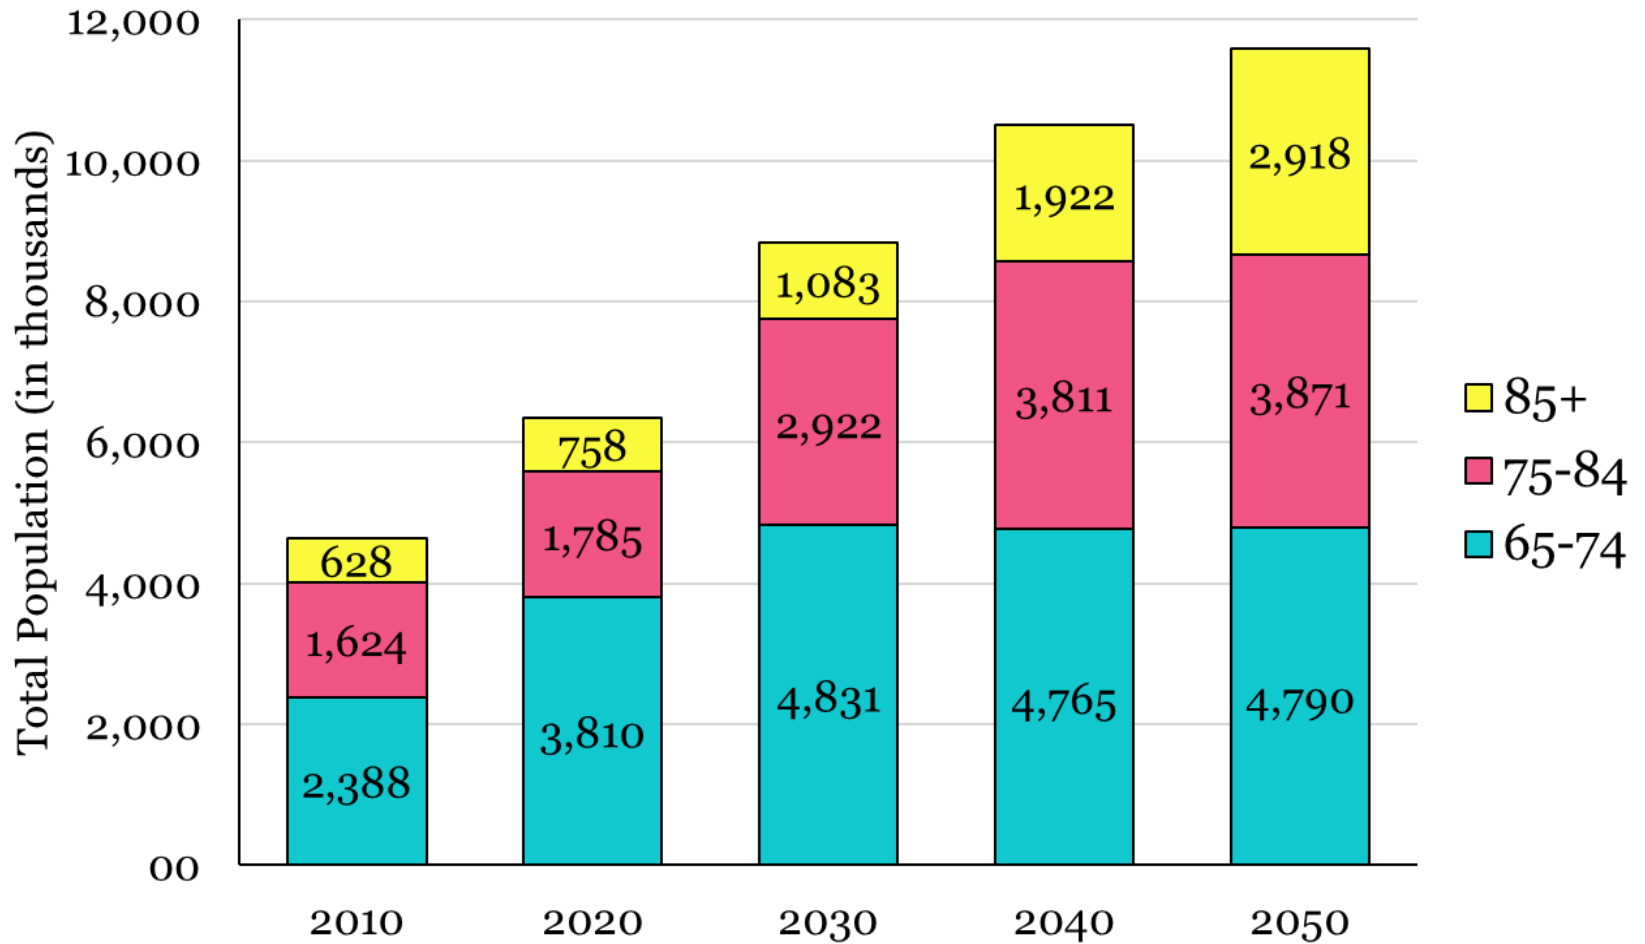

ailshire@usc.edu

California's Older Population by County, 2015

Source: American Community Survey (2015). Map created by Stephen Frochen, USC.

Projected Older Population by Age, 2010-2050

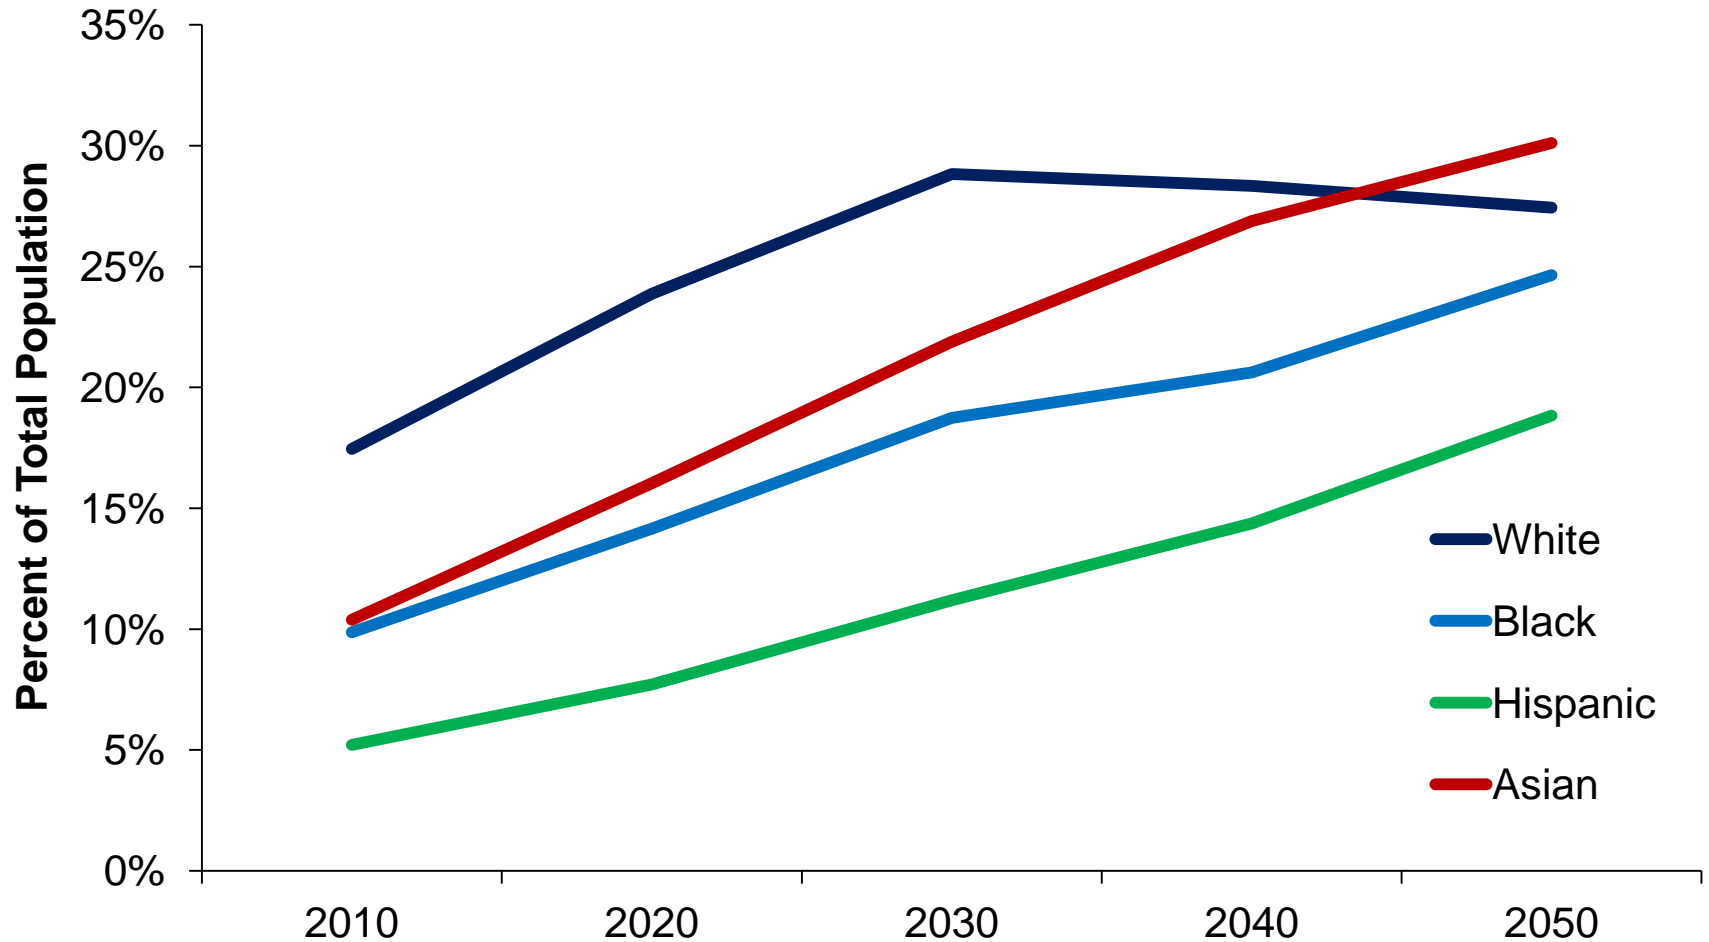

Source: California Department of Finance.

California's Most Rapidly Aging Counties

Top 10 Counties

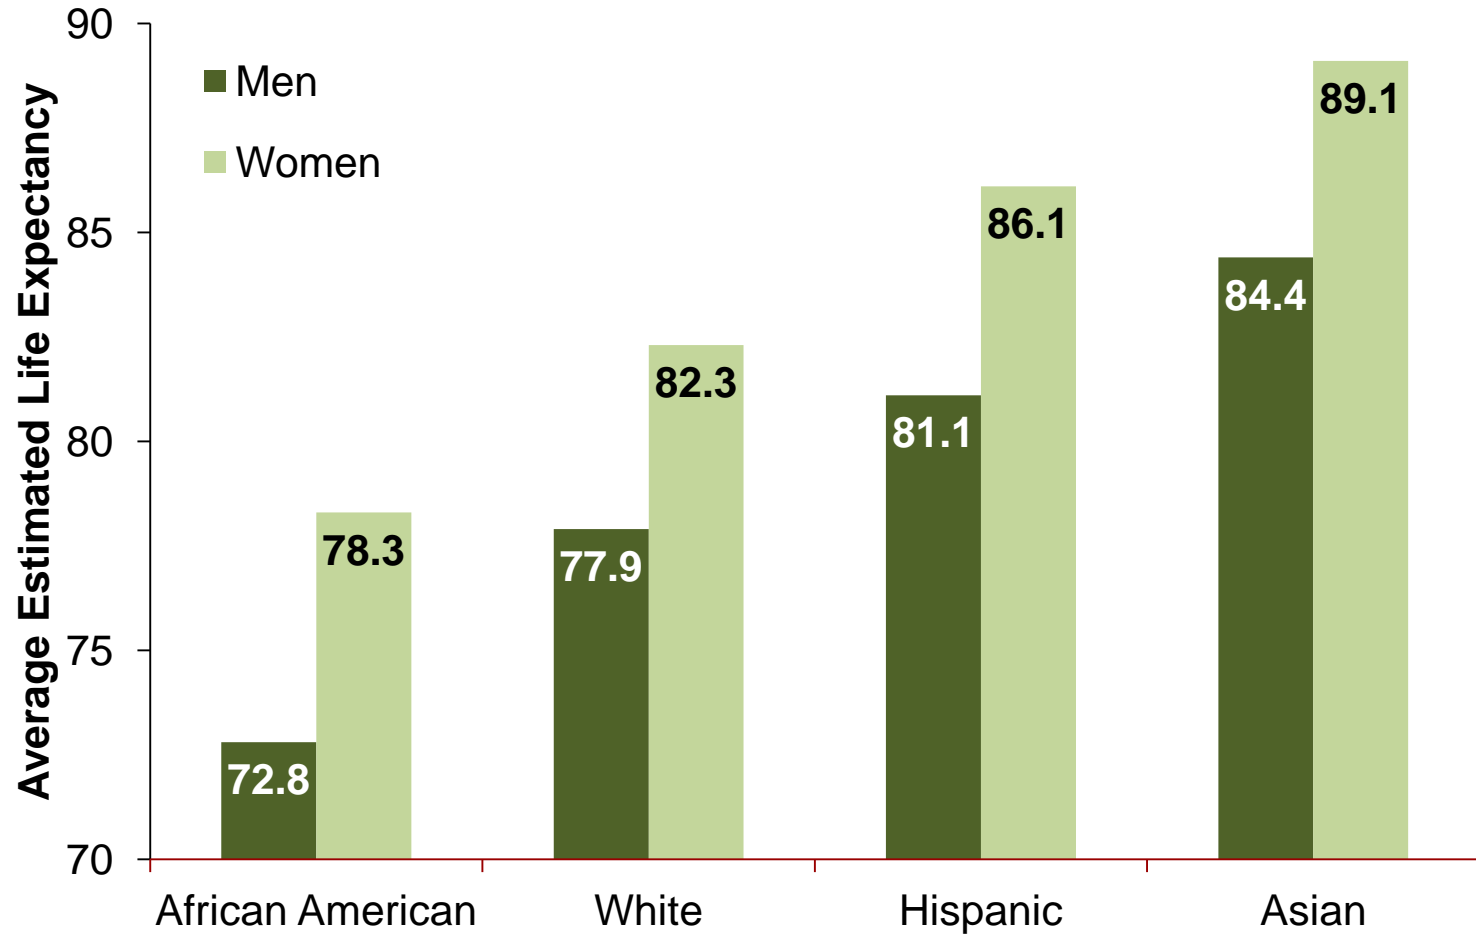

1. Riverside +246%
2. Santa Clara +201%
3. San Bernardino +201%
4. Alameda +193%
5. Contra Costa +191%
6. Sacramento +186%
7. Los Angeles +168%
8. San Francisco +157%
9. Orange +149%
10. San Diego +144%

Projected 65+ Pop. by Race/Ethnicity, 2010-2050

Source: California Department of Finance.

Life Expectancy by Race/Ethnicity

Source: A Portrait of California 2014-2015. Social Science Research Council.

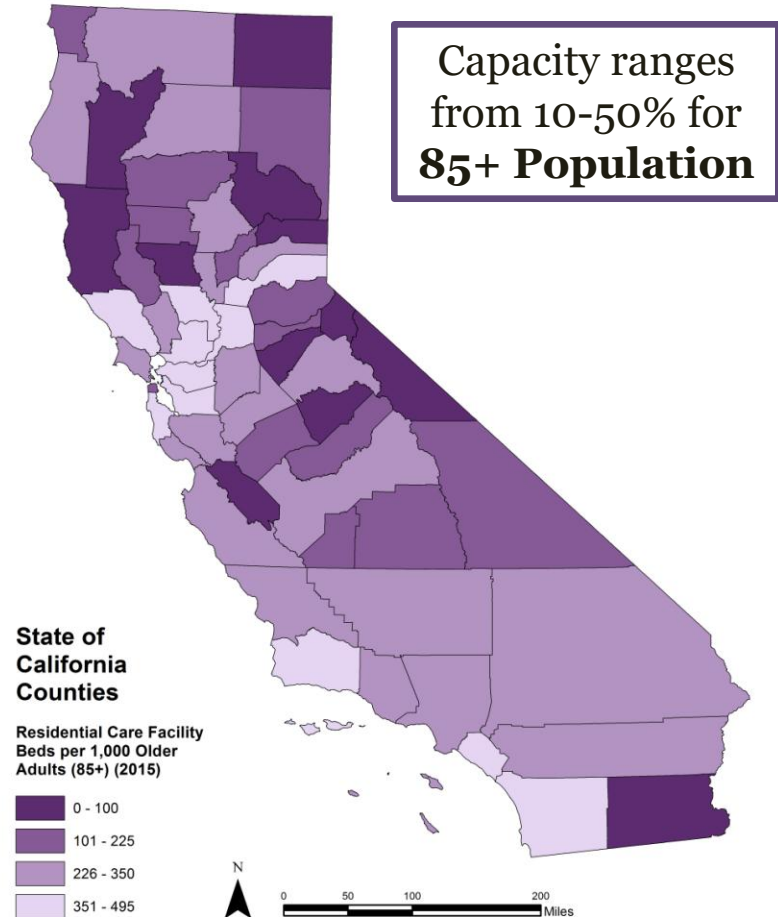

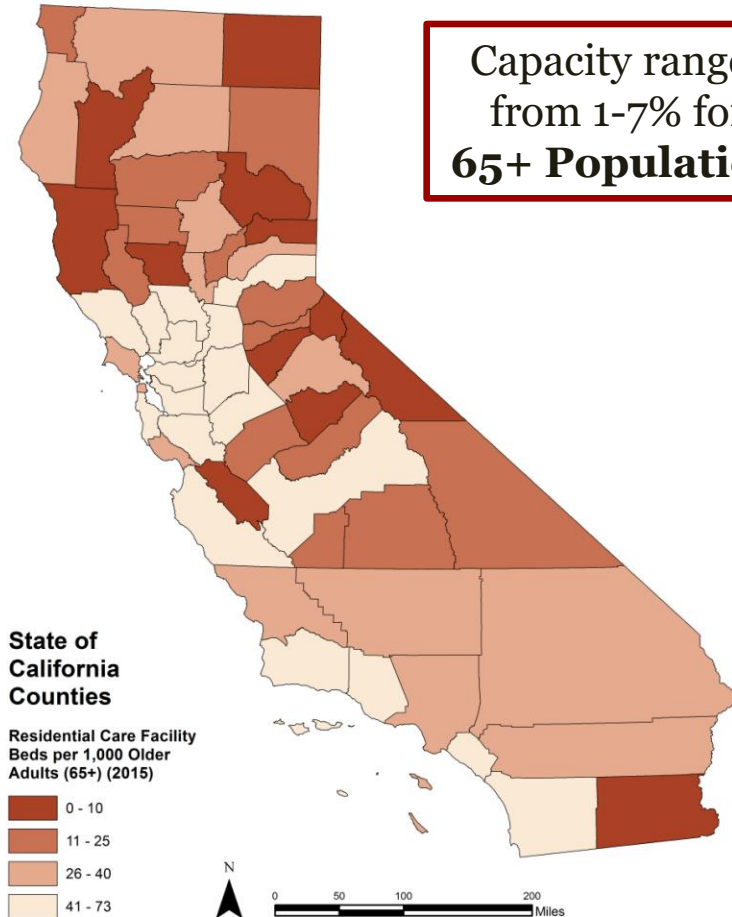

The Looming Eldercare Housing Crisis

Licensed residential care facilities in CA provide beds for only ~3% of adults 60+ in urban areas; even fewer in suburban and rural areas (SCAN Foundation, 2011)

Older adults should be able to age in their communities or near family, but...

“There are too few choices and none located in the neighborhood”

Residential Care Capacity by County, 2015

Old and on the Street: The Graying of America's Homeless

The emergence of an older homeless population is creating daunting challenges for social service agencies and governments already struggling to fight poverty.

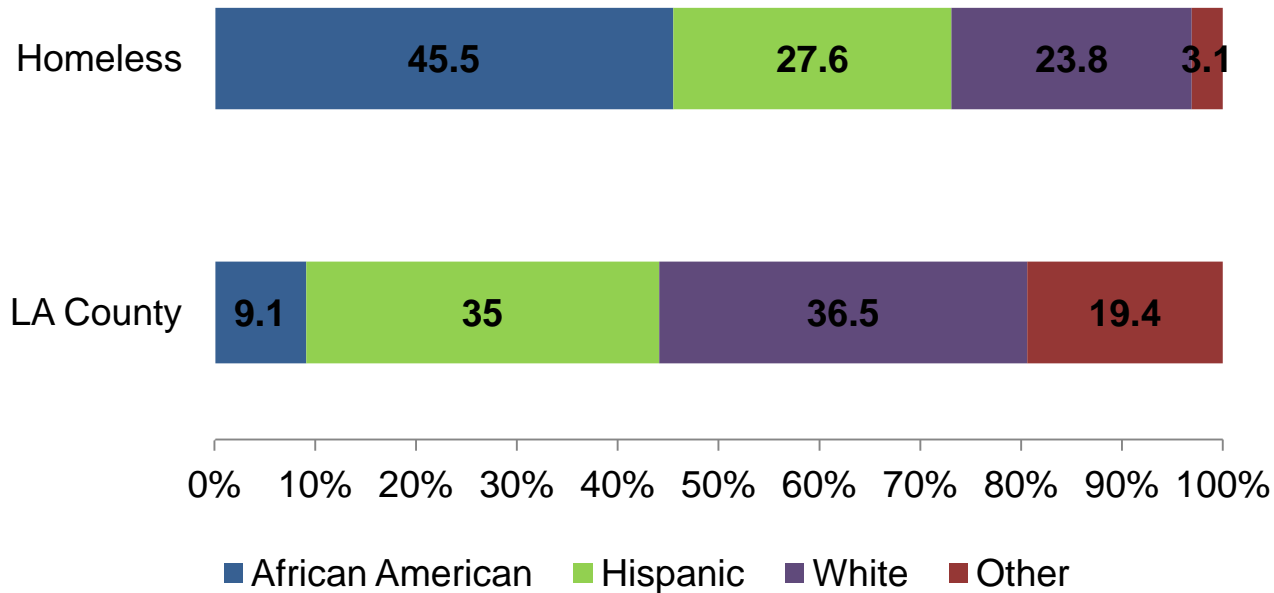

By Adam Nagourney

May 31, 2016

- CA has largest homeless population in the nation
- Adults 50+ make up 31% of the nation's homeless population
 - 50+ are 47% of LA homeless population

African Americans make up only 9% of LA County older adult population, but 45% of the homeless population

Population Ages 50+ in the County and among Homeless

Reasons for Homelessness

Unemployment/financial

Family/relationships

No friends/family

Medical

Mental health

Drugs/alcohol

Release from jail/prison

Eviction/foreclosure

